of the Merchants' and Farmers Bank as receiver.

State Bank Examiner J. O. Ellington says Cashier T. W. Dewey's shortage will be nearer $100,000 than $75,000. Much of his shortage was found to be covered on the books of the banks by entries as to amounts due by banks and bankers. For instance, the books showed the Bank of Wayne, Goldsbore, to be due Farmera' and Merchants' Bank $150. However, the faot is found to be that the Newberne Bank is due the Bank of Wayne over $12,000. Similar conditions are found to exist in relations with other banks, the aggregate of such indebtedness amounting to more than two-thirds of the shorting to more than two-thirds of the shorting to more than two-times age.

It is learned Dewey's trouble came from futures.

dealing in stocks and cotton futures.
Directors of the bank became uneasy several weeks ago, and he was asked to resign, there being no idea, however, that the condition of the bank was as serious as it has proved to be. He asked and received a little time and then Bank Eiseminer Ellington came along and exposed to the directors the real condition of things and Dewey disappeared.

MEAL ON HAT TOLD

Review of the Trial of Bacon and Finch at Boyd-

STORY OF GUILT

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) BOYDTON, VA., August 6 .- In Tue day's Times-Dispatch the correspondent from Petersburg has a message to Judge Homes from the condemned man, Ander-son Finch, the accessory of Dock Bacon, for an attenue of the second of the sec found the grace of God and for Gods sake don't hang Dock Bacon for what I said."

Your correspondent attended the trial of Dock Bacon and heard this man, Anderson Finch, testify. He told about Bacon's going to Mr. Geoghagan's and that he accompanied him to within a short distance of the house, and that he got over in an adjoining lot and watched there, while Dock Bacon went up to the house and sezed Mrs. Geoghagan, whose screams aroused her children, and that Bacon then fied from the house.

The next morning, following the trial of the prisoners, they were brought into the court-room to receive the death sentence. As soon as court was opened, Mr. Powell, of Greenesville county, who was acting as counsel for Bacon, by request of the court, arose and stated to the court that the night before, while the two prisoners were lying down together, Finch had told Bacon that he had lied upon him. Mr. Powell asked Judge Homes if Finch could not go on the stand and make a statement. Judge Homes consented and Finch was taken from the prisoners' dock and placed on the stand. Judge Homes asked him what he wanted to say, to which he replied:

"I have nothing to say except what I irue.

If Finch's evidence was the only testimony to convict Bacon, there would be serious doubt of his guilt, but other corroboating evidence was brought before the jury. One was that meal was found on Bacon's hat the next morning after the occurrence, and Mrs. Geoghagan testified that her assaliant threw meal into her face, and then rubbed it into her eyes. Mr. Geoghagan testified that he went to the livery stable where Dock Bacan worked, the morning after the attack, to see if he could find any meal on Bacon, and he further said as he approached him, and before he got nearning, the negro picked up a stick, as if he expected an attack. Mr. Geoghagan said he did see then and there meal on Bacon's hat. Bacon went on the stand and did not deny that there was meal on his hat, but undertook to account for the meal being on his hat, by saying he got into a romp with one of the colored hands at the railroad depot the evening before, and this negro threw the meal on him.

He was asked to state the man's name.

which he did. This witness being in court, was called to the stand, and de-nied having thrown any meal on the prisoner.

nled naving thrown any meat on the prisoner. Hacon attempted to prove an allib, the thin this he also falled. Bacon admitted on the witness stand, in testifying for himself, that he was in company with Anderson Finch on the night of the attack upon Mrs. Geoghagan.

Several witnesses, besides Mr. Geoghagan, stated that they saw meal on the prisoner's hat and also in his hair.
